

Connecting: People with Resources

Stewardship Grey Bruce Board Recruitment

Through Action and Education, Stewardship Grey Bruce has experience working within the rural and agricultural communities in the areas of natural resource enhancement and protection as well as agricultural best management practices, soil and water projects including cover crops, tree planting and endangered or invasive species. We recognize that engaging youth in environmental issues is our future.

Is improving rural soil and water quality important to you? Do you feel our agricultural lands and rural landscapes deserve the best treatment ever? Are you interested in helping develop projects that help the environment? Do you want to provide rural landowners, residents and farmers of various ages with the tools to learn about environmental stewardship?

Well, look no further! If you are committed to natural resources in Grey Bruce, we are looking for you! Stewardship Grey Bruce non-profit is looking for volunteers like you to join our board of directors. For eight years, our board has been responding to environmental needs in our resource community.

If you are one or more of the following, we'd like to talk to you:

- Energetic people, who are eager to put their enthusiasm to work for our soil and water resources.
- Community leaders willing to engage their peers and youth in programming intended to educate and stimulate.
- Leaders with experience in similar minded agencies who are interested in collaborating and building strong programs with us.
- Scholars/academics who want to put their expertise in rural landscapes and natural resource management into practice.

You'll find our working board very rewarding. We are looking for folks who will:

- Attend eight board meetings annually and actively serve on one of our committees
- Be willing to share their bookkeeping or grant writing skills
- Advocate for best management practices within the rural community and among your colleagues and peers
- Are curious to learn more Interested?

Contact Jo-Anne Harbinson, Secretary at stewardshipgreybruce@gmail.com or 519-369-4284
c/o Grey Sauble Conservation Authority, 237897 Inglis Falls Road, Owen Sound, ON N4K 5N6
www.stewardshipgreybruce.org

We want to grow our team of Volunteers.